COUNCIL FAREWELLS DEPARTING CEO

McKinlay Shire Council has accepted the resignation of CEO Peter Fitchat, effective from close of business today (22 June, 2018).

McKinlay Shire Mayor Belinda Murphy paid tribute to Mr Fitchat's work at the Council, saying the community had benefitted greatly from his time at the helm.

"The Council wishes to record its appreciation of Peter's time as CEO and acknowledge the infrastructure investment he attracted to the Council and community as well as the significant improvements he has made to governance and operational practices," Mayor Murphy said.

"The community has seen a range of projects completed or making considerable progress due to Peter's stewardship."

"These include new road works, Works for Queensland projects, Drought Infrastructure Projects and a significant Natural Disaster Relief and Recovery Arrangements (NDRRA) submission for the 2018 flood event."

"We are enormously grateful for the contribution he has made."

Mr Fitchat said he has enjoyed the challenge of guiding the Shire and was confident the community would reap the benefits from the changes he has introduced.

"On behalf of all the Council, I wish Peter and his family all the best in their future endeavours."
